

THE INTERCULTURAL PROGRAM ENDOWMENT: CELEBRATING HUMANITY.

Indonesian puppet shows. Greek dancing. African documentaries.
Language tables. World class speakers. Global debate and dialogue.

International House sponsors international programs that you just can't find anywhere else. Programs that promote intercultural awareness, connection, and which celebrate humanity in all its diversity.

Says former resident Roshan Gujar, "When you engage in debates that bring real divisions to light and find common ground, or are inspired by dancers performing rituals that are hundreds of years old, you can't help but be moved."

Best of all, these programs are available not only to students, but to alumni, friends and community members.

The Sunday Supper tradition features student performances and allows for dialogue and discovery among alumni and current residents.

These are the events that will be remembered for a lifetime. Donors to the Intercultural Program Endowment will help maintain the diverse offerings that are a hallmark of the I-House experience, and that inspire, entertain and connect our residents and community.

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES:

- $200K will endow and name the honored 75-year-old Sunday Supper tradition that gathers students, alumni, and friends to enjoy featured guest speakers and student performances.
- $100K will endow and name a single Program Assistantship to help support a resident as a student employee engaged in coordinating and promoting our diverse cross-cultural activities and forums.
- $50K will endow and name an annual distinguished speaker's program, dance, music, or film series.

"You feel at the nerve center of a thriving global community. Instead of watching life happen on TV, you're in it."
